Crash Site Recognition

Sam Aurelius Milam III

In the previous eight issues of this newsletter, I presented pictures of crash sites. In this issue, I'm showing pictures of the alleged crash site at the Pentagon. Compare these pictures to the previous pictures. Does the Pentagon appear to be a crash site? To me, that doesn't appear to be the case. If it isn't a crash site, then what happened there? Where's the airplane that allegedly crashed there? What happened to the airplane's passengers and to the members of its crew?

More information about the alleged Pentagon crash site is available in my essays Pentagon Anomalies and Unnamed Agency. They're available in The Sovereign's Library. 🦅

That’s true, look at the people of Easter Island — all inbred but royalty and peon separated by long-ear and short-eared “propaganda, misinformation, the promulgation of false assumptions” I TOTALLY AGREE! If you can’t think the ‘crime’ you can’t imagine doing the ‘crime’ then that’s self-policing, I.E. self-censorship.

In response to one of your mentions in a recent Frontiersman [June, page 2]. Just because I (others) have never commented to you about your purpose/reasons for all the crash sites data, doesn’t mean we weren’t knowledgeable about the reason. To me it IS PLUM OBVIOUS — its purposed to (eventually) reveal that the 9/11 crashes (e.g. in Penn. & Pentagon) could not possibly have happened (per the lying story) & your many crash site articles prove that — to enhance tons of other data that reveal the same thing. —a prisoner

Really good articles in newsletter — people still don’t believe 9-11 was an inside job.

Thank you for continuing to send the Frontiersman — each issue is edifying & I read it right away & share them w/others. —a prisoner

Fog of Justice

Robert H. Outman, Prisoner P-79939

Fair is foul, and foul is fair,
Hover through the fog and filthy air.

—from Macbeth
Shakespeare

Everyone readily recognizes the “fog of war”, which conveniently excused the multi-trillion dollar mistake of the greatest minds in government, absolutely convinced that Saddam Hussein possessed weapons of mass destruction. However, in society’s rush to judgment, no one recognizes the fog of justice, which also leaves a path of destruction.

The United States’ war on crime has produced 25 percent of the world’s prisoners, at a cost of $62+ billion a year, yet the U.S. represents only 5 percent of the world’s population. Are people in the U.S. exceptionally evil, or is the fog of justice blinding us?

Warfare requires a mindset that the enemy must be neutralized at any cost. Our public guardians have declared “war” on crime, establishing an ironic parallel and unintentionally giving rise to a miasmic fog.

In one of many incidents, the Washington Post on the weekend of April 18th 2015 reported how the miasma manifests itself. “The Justice Department and FBI have formally acknowledged that nearly every examiner in an elite FBI forensic unit gave flawed testimony in almost all trials in which they offered evidence against criminal defendants over more than a two-decade period before 2000.” One of the many victims of this fog of justice was Santae Tribble, who served 28 years in prison for murder. His conviction was based on FBI testimony about a single strand of hair which, many years later, was found to be a dog hair. Fallacious testimony and evidence is not exclusive to the FBI. It is a systemic fog in the war on crime. →

Prosecutors, police, and crime lab technicians think of justice as winning at all costs. Bear in mind that none of these warriors in the war on crime are promoted on acquittals. Convictions bring praise and promotions. The more felony convictions an agency can chalk up, the larger will be its budget to wage war on crime. Prosecutors do not see their careers flourish with “Not Guilty” rulings. To lose a case brings shame upon a pride driven “justice” warrior. Nothing could be further from the truth when a jury is told “This officer has no reason to lie.” A distinct fog sprawls through the halls and battlefields of our war on crime.

In a typical police action, once an arrest is made and a conclusion is drawn, a perverse Rubicon is crossed. The investigation is driven to prove the conclusion, not to establish innocence. All too often, the case needs to be “tweaked” to conform to the conclusion. After all, “all is fair in love and war.” People have to realize that every war has its collateral damage, even the war on crime.

The collateral damage of this war is too great

Weather or Not

Sam Aurelius Milam III

When I was young, some of the old timers used to glare up at the vapor trails in the sky and mutter, “If’n they don’t keep them danged jet arrow planes out’n tha sky, they’s agonna ruin tha blamed weather!”

I didn’t know then, and I don’t know now, if those old timers were correct. Maybe it was just the usual skepticism of anything that’s new or different. Nevertheless, I have noticed that, when the conditions are right, those vapor trails can propagate into a wide cloud cover. I don’t know for sure but creating a cloud cover where there wasn’t one before might be significant in terms of the weather.

Stray Thoughts

Sam Aurelius Milam III

• If the War on Crime is actually a war, then all prisoners within the context of that war, both military and civilian, should be treated according to the Geneva Conventions. If it isn’t actually a war, then we should stop calling it a war.

• So far as I’m aware, the gun industry is the only industry that can be criticized or maybe even punished for making a product that’s reliable, affordable, and easy to use.

• Freedom cannot possibly survive if people are prohibited from doing things that are wrong.

• Organized religion has been the most bloody and brutal influence in the known history of human society.

trails can propagate into a wide cloud cover. I don’t know for sure but creating a cloud cover where there wasn’t one before might be significant in terms of the weather.

If you get into the habit of looking up at the sky, then you might sometimes see a criss-crossed checkerboard pattern of vapor trails. You might sometimes notice that all of the visible clouds are long and linear, or can be seen to have developed from long, linear clouds, that is, from vapor trails.

Nation in Distress

The problem isn't that Johnny can't read. The problem isn't even that Johnny can't think. The problem is that Johnny doesn't know what thinking is; he confuses it with feeling.

• This is not an answering machine. This is a telepathic thought-recording device. After the tone, think about your name, your number, and your reason for calling, and I'll think about returning your call.

• Hi. I'm probably home. I'm just avoiding someone I don't like. Leave me a message and if I don't call back, it's you.

• Hi, this is George. I'm sorry I can't answer the phone right now. Leave a message and then wait by your phone until I call you back.

• If you are a burglar, then we're probably at home cleaning our weapons right now and can't come to the phone. Otherwise, we probably aren't home and it's safe to leave a message. ∞
